

355.7-303 Diversion -- Reconsignment -- Change of instructions.

- (1) Unless the bill of lading otherwise provides, the carrier may deliver the goods to a person or destination other than that stated in the bill or may otherwise dispose of the goods on instructions from
  - (a) the holder of a negotiable bill; or
  - (b) the consignor on a nonnegotiable bill notwithstanding contrary instructions from the consignee; or
  - (c) the consignee on a nonnegotiable bill in the absence of contrary instructions from the consignor, if the goods have arrived at the billed destination or if the consignee is in possession of the bill; or
  - (d) the consignee on a nonnegotiable bill if he is entitled as against the consignor to dispose of them.
- (2) Unless such instructions are noted on a negotiable bill of lading, a person to whom the bill is duly negotiated can hold the bailee according to the original terms.
